Sarsaparilla

For Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Eruptions and Eruptive diseases of the skin, Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and Uterine disease, Syphilitic and Mercurial diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, General Debility, and for Purifying the Blood.

This Sarsaparilla is a combination of vegetable alteratives—Stillingia, Mandrake, Yellow Dock—with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure.

Its ingredients are so skilfully combined, that the full alterative effect of each is assured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effectual as to purge out from the system those impurities and corruptions which develop into loathsome disease.

The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it, prove their experience of its usefulness.

Certificates attesting its virtues have accumulated, and are constantly being received, and as many of these cases are publicly known, they furnish convincing evidence of the superiority of this Sarsaparilla over every other alterative medicine. So generally is its superiority to any other medicine known, that we need do no more than to assure the public that the best qualities it has ever possessed are strictly maintained.

Our First "China Boy."

Never shall we forget the first China man whom we employed as a house servant. The excellent and trusted Bridget who had lived with us so long was to be married, and, after her, we felt, indeed, that "no Irish need apply." She remained beyond her time that we might fill her place, but each aspirant to the culinary domain seemed worse than the preceding, and finally we asked our Chinese laundry man if he could send us a "China boy," as they are called. Biddie protested.

"Och! I can't bear to think of ye's having a Chinaman! They will stale all there is in the house, and ye'a won't know where it goes."

But we made due allowance for Biddie's prejudices, engaged "a boy," and he came at the time appointed.

A neat, rather handsome fellow, he was, and as he disappeared into his room, bundle in hand, we were conscious of a great drawing of the spirit toward him. In five minutes he emerged, clad in the daintiest of white blouses and aprons, his pigtail girded around his head as meaning business, and with the quietest step and mien he sought us out in the parlor, and "came and stood before us," his head slightly bowed, his hands folded, perfectly silent, awaiting orders. There was a submissiveness in his attitude, his expression, his whole aspect, which suggested the Old Testament and the "Arabian Nights" in turn. Our hearts leaped up, as Wordsworth's to a rainbow. Here was a new regime, indeed! How promising! How delightful!

He went to work in a way which showed perfect acquaintance with his duties, and we mentally planned to teach him (was he not a heathen?), to make much of him, and to keep him a long time. It was nice to have such a distingue looking creature around, and how deftly he waited on door and table! About the middle of the afternoon, another Chinaman appeared on the scene, and the two had much cackle together. No. 1 showed No. 2 his kitchen, laundry, and closet; and we concluded that he was pleased with his conveniences, and was receiving congratulations thereupon. By five o'clock he again "came and stood before us."

"My friend heap good boy; he stay you; I catch um place, San Francisco."

And China boy No. 1 summarily departed, leaving behind him quite an inferior substitute. And with him went, as we learned that evening, all the cracked wheat which we chanced to have in the flour closet.—Scribner for September.

Pompey Hussard.—A young Parisian, noted for his grace and readiness as a second in many duels, was asked by a friend to accompany him to the mayor's office to affix his signature as a witness to the matrimonial registry. He consented, but when the scene was reached forgot himself. Just as the mayor was ready for the last formalities, he broke out: "Gentlemen, cannot this affair be arranged? Is there no way of preventing this sad occurrence?"

What the Bullet Sang.

O, joy of creation,
To be!
O, rapture to fly
And be free!
So the battle lost or won,
Though its smoke shall hide the sun,
I shall find my love—the one
Born for me!

I shall know him where he stands,
All alone,
With the power in his hands
Not o'erthrown;
I shall know him by his face,
By his godlike trust and grace;
I shall hold him for a space,
All my own!

It is he—oh, my love!
So bold!
It is I—all thy love
Foretold!
I to I. Oh, love, what bliss!
Dost thou answer to my kiss?
Ah, sweetheart, what is this?
Lieth there
So cold!

LOVE'S STRATAGEM

A Story of Revolutionary Days.

The eventful year of 1778 was drawing to a close when Colonel Campbell, of the British army, landed near Savannah, and fell furiously on the Americans under General Howe. Howe's troops were in no condition to face the enemy; an unsuccessful campaign in the Floridas had enfeebled his men by disease, and he retreated up the river. Of course, the then capital of Georgia fell into the hands of the enemy.

The Holly family that dwelt in Savannah at the time of its capture and sack consisted of three persons—the mother and two children. The father, a man of wealth and influence in Georgia, had died during the year that preceded the outbreaking of the war, and the home of his family was one of the finest residences in the city.

Miriam Holly, the oldest child, was a beautiful girl of nineteen, while her brother was five years her junior. If the father had lived, he might have proved a Tory, for he was devotedly attached to the mother country, and when the king's troops took possession of the capital, Colonel Campbell commanded that the Hollys' home should not be ransacked.

Thus the house escaped pillage, and Miriam hastened to thank the soldier for his kindness.

Colonel Campbell was struck by the girl's grace and remarkable loveliness, and detained her at his headquarters until he had learned her family history by many adroit questions.

"There goes the handsomest woman in Georgia!" cried Campbell, as the girl left the house.

His companion, who happened to be his chief of staff, looked after Miriam and remarked:

"I quite agree with the colonel. These American rebels are all beautiful."

Campbell was silent for a moment.

"We will not occupy this building after to-morrow," he said, suddenly. "I am going to take up my abode beneath the same roof that shelters Miriam Holly."

"Love at first sight, colonel," said the chief of staff, with a merry twinkle in his eyes.

The conversation was interrupted by the arrival of an orderly, and was not resumed.

On the following day Colonel Campbell made Miriam Holly's home his headquarters.

The girl grew deathly pale when she learned of the sudden change, and said in a whisper to her mother:

"This is a terrible event. He is not fit to depart yet, nor will he be for a week to come."

"Miriam, I have been thinking that it might be policy for to give him up to the army," replied Mrs. Holly.

"Give him up now!" cried the girl. "Give him up and hear every Tory in Savannah cry for his blood? No! Unless discovered, he shall remain where he is until he is able to escape!"

Miriam Holly spoke with much firmness, and tears stood in the mother's eyes when she opened her arms and received the daughter in her embrace.

"Forgive me, Miriam!" she cried. "We must keep our secret from Colonel Campbell. He must not know who lies to-day beneath our roof."

So Miriam hastened from her mother's presence, and by touching a concealed spring in the wall of an unfinished room, revealed a narrow stairway. She at once mounted the steps and entered a very small apartment into which light streamed from a sky-window.

The room was tenanted. On a low cot lay a man in his twenties. His dark hair contrasted vividly with the deathly pallor of his face, and the suit of faded Continental uniform, with a sword, that hung against the wall over the bed, told that he was an American soldier. A boy of fifteen who sat on the edge of the bed was reading aloud, but in a cautious tone, when the door opened to admit Miriam.

The invalid's face lit up with a smile when the fair girl came forward and took his fevered hand.

Then she told him about Colonel Campbell's change of quarters, and he listened without a question.

"Well," he said at last, "what are we going to do?"

"We are going to remain here till we get strong enough to leave the city," answered Miriam, with a smile, and even while she spoke a faint noise below told her that the British colonel was moving into his new quarters.

The Continental was a captain in Howe's little army. He had served the colonies with a zeal surpassed by none who rallied round the cause of freedom; but disease had seized upon him in Florida, and he returned with the troops to Georgia to find an asylum in Miriam Holly's house, and to be nursed by her through the long hours of his fever. The attending physician was a man who knew how to keep a secret, and as his sympathies were with the patriot cause, he gave Miriam many valuable hints that looked to the hidden soldier's health and future safety.

Colonel Campbell, bent on the conquest of the fair girl's heart, tried to make himself agreeable to the inmates of the mansion. Miriam took good care not to show him that his absence would be more desirable than his company, and the widow treated him with a courtesy that kept him aloof from suspicion for several days.

It was believed by the Tories of Savannah that a number of Continentals remained secreted in the city. Indeed, several had been discovered since its capture, and at the time of the commandant's change of quarters an active search for such persons was going on.

"Is this house haunted, Miss Miriam?" asked the colonel, one morning, at the breakfast table.

The girl started at the abrupt question, and wondered if she turned pale.

"Haunted?" she echoed, with an effort. "The ghosts must be rats. Have you been visited by sheeted beings?"

"No, but after I retired last night I heard a noise like the sound of distant voices. It seemed to be directly overhead, and I called my chief of staff. Who sleeps over my apartment, if you will permit so bold a question?"

"My brother," answered Miriam, quickly. "I was with him until a late hour last night."

"And the night before?"

"Yes."

"Then I heard the sound of your voices, no doubt," said Campbell, glancing at the chief of staff, whose eyes during the conversation had been fastened on the girl's face.

Major Guilford had noticed every change of countenance, and when the twain had retired from the breakfast table, he grasped his superior's arm.

"What do you say now, colonel?" he cried, in triumph.

"I don't know what to say. I"—

"I watched her like a hawk, and I tell you the girl is dissimulating. There is a rebel soldier in this house!"

Colonel Campbell looked at his major, but did not speak.

"I never did believe that she was a Tory," continued Guilford. "She is one of the rankest rebels in Savannah. Why, colonel, so long as the Continental remains beneath this roof, you cannot succeed with her. He stands between you and Miriam Holly, so you see the line of your policy is clearly before you."

The British colonel started.

"I did not think of that!" he said.

"Major, we will solve the mystery of the sounds we heard last night."

"With me it is solved already," was the chief of staff's reply.

From that hour Miriam Holly was watched.

Her absence from the lower rooms was noted, and the colonel knew when she was not in her boudoir.

As the days waned the hidden Continental improved, and at last he rose and donned his faded uniform.

"To-morrow night, if it be dark and stormy," Miriam said to him, while she polished his sword in the light of the lamp. "I have the doctor's assistance, and the horse will not fail you. You know whither to ride, and before long this sword which Howe has missed will flash once more before the enemy."

Miriam Holly fancied that she was about to outwit the king's men. The Continental was ready for flight, and there were true friends who promised to help him beyond the city.

It was with delight that the girl hailed the great drops of rain that pattered on the panes of her window, when the darkness of the chosen night fell over their city like a pall. The thunder rolled about the house, and now and then flashes of lightning revealed glimpses of the carnival rain.

In the hidden room stood Captain Tempest, the shadow of his former self, but strong in the desire for liberty. He waited for Miriam, who came at last and showed him the raindrops on her dress.

"The elements are assisting us," she said, joyfully. "The doctor is waiting like a hero under the elm, and he has the password."

"Good! Are the [illegible] asleep?"

"They retired two hours ago," said Miriam. "I am satisfied the coast is clear."

Then the soldier picked up his sword with a pride that caused his eyes to flash, and Miriam was smiling upon him, when a voice made both start and hold their breath.

A step on the secret stair!

The twain exchanged startled glances and the girl turned to the door, which opened suddenly, and revealed the form of Colonel Campbell. Over his shoulders flashed the chief of staff's triumphant eyes.

This unexpected event threw the lovers off their guard, and, as the British officers leaped into the room with swords half drawn, the highest in rank exclaimed:

"A rebel's nest! So, so! Surrender at once or I will rob the rebel troops of one sneaking officer!"

His last words were addressed to the Continental captain, whose answer was kept back by Miriam Holly's action.

Shrinking from the British officers, she reached the bed whereupon a pistol lay and a moment later she held it tightly gripped in her hand!

"Gentlemen, it may be the king's cause that will lose in this game," she said, addressing Colonel Campbell. "You will sheathe your swords and obey me!"

Campbell and his chief of staff exchanged glances.

At Miriam's command they stepped from before the door, and she looked at her lover.

"You know the way," she said. "These soldiers will not pursue in such a storm. I will be responsible for their safety, for they wouldn't have a bullet in their uniforms for the world. Go, Marvin, and let every blow that you deliver be a blow for freedom!"

He said "good-bye" as he stepped to the door; he bade the discomfited officers good-night in a sarcastic tone that made them wince, and then passed down the stair.

The officers' forced confinement was irksome to them, and the minutes passed slowly away. By and-bye, Miriam Holly laid the pistol on the bed, and told the story of her lover's sickness. Campbell and his chief listened with delight to her voice, forgetting that they were prisoners no longer.

When they at last went down the narrow stair, Miriam's eyes followed them, and her good-night, so full of triumph, made Campbell grate his teeth.

"She's beaten me!" he said to his brother officer. "I've lost the prize. We'll go back to old quarters."

He was as good as his word, and few persons ever learned why the colonel so hastily quit the Holly mansion, and returned to his first quarters.

Captain Tempest escaped, and returned to Savannah at the head of a regiment when the British flag was lowered to a delivered nation.

Then he claimed a bride and everybody was made acquainted with the story of the hidden Continental.

Forcing a Sale.

It was a job to sell old Twister anything at a decent profit, and, indeed, to sell him at all half the time. He only hauled over goods, asked prices, said they were too high, and walked off. One day our head salesman saw him coming in and told the boys to keep back and he would certainly sell him something before he left the store, and so we stood back and waited.

"What's the price of these goods?" said Twister, taking hold of some that were lying in an open case.

"These, Mr. Twister, are twelve and one-half cents a yard," said the salesman, naming half a cent under the price.

"Twelve and a half! Too high. Now, at twelve we might trade."

"Well, we will say twelve to you," said the salesman.

"Well, I dun no as I want the goods enough," said Twister. "It ought to be made an object; now, at eleven and a half I'd buy."

"Well, you shall have a case at eleven and a half," said the salesman, determined he should buy at some price.

"Well, I don't want but half a case," said Twister.

"Very well, we will divide the case for you."

"I s'pose," said the purchaser, "you'll throw in the case and won't charge for the cartage?"

"Yes," said the salesman; "we'll take out half the case, charge you nothing for cartage, throw in the case, and sell you the goods for eleven and a half cents."

"Six months, I s'pose," said the keen buyer.

"Yes, six months' credit, and privilege of returning all you don't sell," said the persevering seller. "Now, I suppose I may ship them right up to your town?"

"No, no, don't be so fast, young man; I guess I won't take 'em—I don't like to have goods forced on me in that style."

Frauds on Farmers.

A case that will be of interest to that portion of the farming community which has been deluded into signing notes in payment for agricultural implements that prove worthless, etc., has just been tried in the court of common pleas at New London, Conn., and decided for the defendant. Loring & Wales had come into possession of a note given by J. W. Wheeler to the agent of a New Hampshire manufacturing concern, and sued for its recovery. The judge, in his charge to the jury, said that if the signatures of the defendants were obtained to said notes by the [illegible], artifice, and deceit of the said payee, and [illegible] the defendants to suppose [illegible] that they were signing a [illegible] of a different character, and without negligence on their part, then the plaintiffs, though innocent, bona fide holders for value, cannot recover, for then in no sense is the pretended note the note of the defendants. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendants.

Some Things that are Plain.

Up to a late hour last night, the question whether Gov. Seymour is or is not the Democratic candidate, was one of those things which no fellow could find out. Several other things, however, were plainly visible to the naked eye. Thus:

(1) The Democrats have nobody else to run. They couldn't take Hendricks, Doolittle, Dorsheimer, were afraid to risk Potter, and could'n't get Church. If Seymour refuses, their poverty stricken lack of a 1st candidate is judiciously advertised. (2) They have abandoned all idea of considerable Liberal Republican or Independent support. John Kelly blurted out the truth. They kicked Mr Dorsheimer down stairs as he was trying to climb up, snubbed the little band of Liberals who attempted to start a bolt from the late Liberal Convention, and served notice on all who chose to stand such treatment and say, that they must come squarely up to the mark of Bourbon Democracy, accept the old war issues, and take the scapegoat of '63 as the Moses for '76. (3) The idea of carrying this State on the cry of Reform is abandoned. Dorsheimer surrendered honest money in the platform, and Tilden surrendered it in his letter. The convention would take nobody identified with the Reform movement in this State, and insisted on having a leader identified with the record of the Democratic party during the war. They force the thing therefore, on that record. (4) Gov Tilden has lost his grip. When they found that they could'nt get Hewitt his following became demoralized. They tried for Dorsheimer, and the convention insulted their candidate. The Governor tried then to put Dorsheimer under the wing of Seymour, and now Seymour is refusing to protect him. If they shook badger Seymour into running, the people would resent being asked to elect him merely that he might resign and turn over the Governorship to Dorsheimer. If he should persist in his refusal, the party would resent any effort to put Dorsheimer in his place as the candidate. In any case, Tilden is defeated on his first, second, and third choice, and prestige as an invincible manipulator is destroyed.—N. Y. Tribune.

Newspapers at the Centennial

The special Correspondent of the London Times says it would be difficult to find an apter illustration of the big way in which the Americans do things than that furnished by the "Centennial Newspaper Building," in the Exhibition grounds. Here you may see any one, or, if you like, all of the 8,129 newspapers published regularly in the United States, and see them, one and all, for nothing! You are not only permitted as a favor to see them, but invited, nay, pressed, to enter the favor of entering the building and calling for what paper you like. It is about as cool and agreeable a place—quite apart from its literary attractions—as a visitor to the Exhibition could wish to be offered a chair in. He may at first wonder how, among 8,000 papers, among them such mighty sheets as the New York Herald, he is to get at the small, loved print of his home, thousands of miles away, it may be, over the Rocky Mountains. But the management is so simple that, by consulting the catalogue, or even without the aid of the catalogue, any one can at once find whatever paper he wants. They are pigeon holed on shelves in the alphabetical order of their States or Territories and their towns, the names of which are clearly labelled on the shelves. The proprietors of the Centennial Newspaper Building are advertising agents, the largest in all America—Messrs. G. P. Rowell & Co., of New York. Their enterprise will cost altogether about $20,000, or £4,000, including the building and the expenses of "running" it for six months. The 8,000 and odd American newspapers are declared, by the same authority, to exceed "the combined issues of all the other nations of the earth."

It does not appear, on the whole, that the Democrats have made the best use of their opportunities since the St. Louis Convention. Their prospects are by no means so bright as they were at that time. They succeeded in putting up a candidate for the Presidency for whom they have been employed in explaining and apologizing ever since, and now, in New York, the State most important to their success, they have nominated for Governor a man for whom they will have to redouble their labors.—Cincinnati Commercial.

The rage into which the Democratic party flies every time a Republican speaker waves the bloody shirt is actuated by pure envy. If a Democrat waved any kind of a shirt in the air during the campaign, he would have to go naked while he waved it.—Burlington Hawk Eye.

Allen, Thurman, and Pendleton are astonished when they read in Eastern Democratic papers that "Hayes has no record." Who was it that whipped us so confoundedly? they ask.

The Democrats had one State officer in North Carolina. He stole a big portion of the Peabody School Fund awarded the State.

"Never mind about income taxes in 1876," says the Nashville (Tenn.) American, which is very earnest for "Tilden and reform."

[illegible] COMMISSIONER,
[illegible] HILE,
[illegible] township.

The County Ticket.

We publish among our local news the proceedings of our County Convention. At this late hour we can but mention the candidates presented for the suffrages of the people. We look upon it as a strong ticket, one that is worthy of the support of every good citizen, and one that can and should be elected. The nomination for Representative is the strongest that could have been made. Mr C H. Foster is a gentleman against whose private and business character there cannot be raised the slightest suspicion. He is an old resident of Bradford township, an extensive and prosperous oil operator, and a man of excellent standing and conceded ability. We look to see him receive an overwhelming vote in the Tuna Valley, and as he is a man who will merit the hearty support of his party in other parts of the county, we feel confident of his election.

Messrs G M. Smith, of Smethport Borough, and F N. Burnham, of Eldred township, our candidates for Associate Judges are both gentlemen who will do honor to the bench. Mr. Burnham is one of the most highly respected citizens of Eldred township. He has never before, in our knowledge, been an aspirant for office. He is capable and eminently worthy, and deserves the full support of his party. Mr. G. M Smith is a resident of Smethport borough. He has for many years been a stand by of litigants as Justice, Arbitrator, &c. He is a man of judgment and decision, thoroughly acquainted with all forms of legal proceedings, and inasmuch as it is a matter of necessity to have an Associate Judge a resident of the county seat, we know of no man who would fill the position more acceptably to all parties than G. M. Smith.

Mr I F B. White, the nominee for [illegible] is a citizen of [illegible] township. He is a man of good judgment and good sense, and has a thorough acquaintance throughout the county, three essential requisites in a Jury Commissioner.

Although this is a strong ticket, it will no easy task to elect it. Yet we believe it can be elected, and it behooves all good citizens and good Republicans to pull off their coats and work for its success,—and it will be assured.

State Senator.

Our candidate for State Senator from this district. Hon. Lucius Rogers, is sufficiently well known throughout the county and district to merit the warmest and most universal approval of his nomination by all Republicans and good citizens. Mr. Rogers has once represented the counties of Potter and McKean in the State Legislature. He also has had sufficient additional experience as clerk both in the Senate and House to warrant his taking at once a useful and prominent position in that body. It is to be hoped that the other counties in the district will readily see the justice of McKean's claim to the senatorship for no other reason than that the entire district may profit by our excellent choice.

Vermont.

The State election in Vermont took place on Tuesday. We have not complete returns, but sufficient to insure a Republican majority of about 24,000, a gain of over 3,000 over the vote of 1874. Good enough.

For Congressman,

McKean county presents the name of W. J. Colegrove. There are two others, and possibly three, to be presented from the other counties in the district. Lycoming county presents Hon Henry Johnson, of Muncy. Cameron county presents Capt. J. C. Johnson, of Emporium. It is probable that Potter will urge the renomination of the present member, Hon. Sobieski Ross. Any one in the list would no doubt prove satisfactory, but we believe neither would prove a more honorable or useful Congressman than would W. J. Colegrove.

What Will Beat Tilden.

From the Brooklin (N. Y.) Argus (Dem

The elements which are to beat Mr. Tilden, so far as the State of New York is concerned, are several. First, his disregard of his official oath in not bringing the plunderers of the new Capitol building to justice, for having stolen $2,000,000 of the taxpayers' money; second, the admitted loss of the reform element in the city of Brooklyn, which gave him over one third of the State majority for Governor; third, the secret influence of Tammany Hall, which is working against him; fourth, his inability to bring over any Republicans, for the fact that he and Tweed were responsible for defrauding them candidate, Griswold, out of his certificate in 1868, by keeping back the returns, and counting 59,150 majority in New York city for Hoffman, fifth, the release of Tweed and the protection of the official in whose custody Tweed was; sixth, Tilden's abandonment of specie payment and surrender to the inflationists, and seventh, the false character and fraudulent acts of Mr. Tilden, as they will be known and understood before the canvass is over. No man can carry the weight of acts like defrauding the Government out of taxes to the extent of securing relief through Congress; of inadequate income returns made to the Internal Revenue Department; of over issue of Railroad stock, and defrauding innocent holders out of millions of dollars of property, as was decided in the United States Supreme Court in 1865, in the celebrated case of Julius Wadsworth and others, and by which division over $2,000,000 of stock had to be made good; of compelling the State of Michigan to sue him for land taxes, of making an alliance with notorious ring men; of packing State Conventions at the point of the bayonet, as Erastus Brooks, editor of the New York Express, and Mr. Tilden did do; of compelling poor laborers to take four months' notes for their weekly labor, and then shaving the notes at the store of Wetmore & Tilden, as stated by the Chicago Tribune. These, and many other transactions like them, are more than the intelligent people of this country are willing to endorse, by giving to the author of them the seat of the President.

The public debt statement for August shows the very creditable and satisfactory reduction of $3,120,000 during the month. The St. Louis platform grandiloquently declares: "We denounce the financial imbecility and immorality of the Republican party." The public debt statement says: "Reduction for the month of August, $3,120,000." Let the two utterances be published side by side. There is nothing like facts and figures to prick the bubble of inflated political gag.

The New York Tribune has a very soft side for Tilden, and at first sneered at the Times' exposure of the income tax fraud as a "campaign scandal." It now admits: "It is the first thing which has really touched Gov. Tilden's character for integrity. If the facts have been correctly reported—and we do not understand the Private Secretary to deny them—this does touch it—seems to touch it vitally—and the Private Secretary's explanation does not mend the matter. We hope there is a better one, and shall be glad to print it soon."

The Miner acknowledges the receipt of a copy of McPherson's Handbook of Politics for 1876 from Hon. S. Ross, just issued from the press. It is an invaluable compendium of political information, and no newspaper office is complete without it.

True, neighbor; we did have it bad. But we have recovered. Sunday base ball playing has cured us.

—The Republican County Convention and the tardiness of some of our legal friends in getting ready the "copy" of sheriff sales that "must" be inserted, is the occasion of our being one day late with our issue of this week.

—It was an open single buggy, and not as we stated a platform wagon, that Wallace Ostrander purchased of C. W. Colegrove. The example stands with equal force, in either case.

—The Democrats of Cameron county have made the following nominations: For Congress, Wm. Howard; State Senate, J. B. Newton; Assembly, A. H. Bowman; Prothonotary, J. M. Judd.

—The Lycoming Democrats have nominated the following ticket: Hon. O. H. Blackwell for Congress; R. P. Allen for State Senator; John Galley, N. B. Kimball and A. H. Hill for Assemblymen.

—Dr. C. B. Farley, traded some oil lands to Horace Little, last Monday, for M. Little's store and stock of goods. The Doctor on the same day purchased the Walker block on the corner of Main and Broad streets.—Elk Democrat.

BISHOP OF THE DIOCESE.—The Rt. Rev. J. B. Kerfoot, D. D., Bishop of this Diocese will hold service in the Court House on next Tuesday evening, Sept. 12, for the purpose of administering the Holy Rite of Apostolic rite of Confirmation. All are cordially invited to attend.

The editor of this paper desires to express his thanks to the members of the Republican County Convention for the very flattering vote he received in the nomination of Representative. From the fact that it was unexpected and entirely unsolicited on our part, we look upon it as a kind expression of the fact that our efforts in behalf of the party are appreciated and endorsed.

—A correspondent in another column take another correspondent and corrects to task on account of his version of an accident on the McK. & B. R. R. Willingly he "Railroader" have his say about it, but think there is little occasion for his lecturing us. He ought to be old enough to know that news paper publishers are obliged to trust more or less to the truthfulness and good faith of their correspondents in the matter of news, and he will always find that they are ready and willing to correct all errors and make amends for any unintentional wrongs committed through them by others.

—An innocent appearing paragraph crept into our Port Allegany correspondence of the 17th ult., on account of which we learn that some of the members on the Port Allegany Cornet Band are chagrined, and upon hearing the matter explained we think they have good reason to be. We make a practice of rejecting our correspondence very closely, and throwing out any items that we deem to be of an objectionable character, but it often happens that an item is so worded that its real meaning is concealed except to those acquainted with all the facts. This was one of that kind and escaped our notice. We did not know what the "true inwardness" of the item was, or it would have found a resting place in the waste paper basket on first sight.

Where to buy Furniture in Buffalo.

While in Buffalo recently we visited the extensive ware-rooms of Albert Best & Co., 39 and 41 Perry Street, and made a thorough inspection of their large and elegant stock. They make a specialty of the manufacture of Parlor Furniture, and keep on hand the latest and best styles of bed-room sets. We were particularly struck with not only the elegance of their furniture but with the reasonably rates of their prices, and we would advise our readers to look at their stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Buggies! Buggies!

Jud. Nourse is agent for the sale of buggies manufactured at Arnade, which he is able and willing to guarantee as first class in quality and make. They are warranted to be all manufactured of second growth hickory and well made in every particular. One special advantage that is claimed for them is their cheapness in price, which is a point worth looking at in these times. Call upon the agent if you are in want of a buggy.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

A Full and Harmonious Meeting, and a Strong Ticket Selected.

A CONDENSED REPORT.

The Republican County Convention was called to order by the chairman of the County Committee yesterday afternoon. There was a full attendance, only one township, Hamilton, being unrepresented. The following is the list of delegates:

Annin—F F Bishop, C D Roberts.
Bradford Boro—E Parsons, O A Hotchkiss.
Ceres—J P Clarke, W K King.
Corydon—E A Colburn.
Eldred—Wm Robert, C C Moses.

Sergeant—W T Totten, John Martin
Smethport Boro—L Rogers, M A Sprague.
Wetmore—O D Coleman, J Davis.

M. A. Sprague was elected President, and J. Davis and O. D. Vosburgh Secretaries of the Convention.

A committee of five, as follows, were appointed to draft resolutions:

O A Hotchkiss, L Rogers, W K King, J E Britt, Jr., and O D Coleman.

On motion, the following gentlemen were selected as the County Committee for the ensuing year:

M A. Sprague, Chairman.
Annin—F F Bishop.
Bradford—Lorenzo Drake.
Bradford Boro—Loyal Ward.
Ceres—John J Roberts.
Corydon—Philip Tome.
Eldred—C C Moses
Hamilton—Chas Bartholomew.
Hamlin—H W Barlingame.
Keating—Philetus Gallup.
Lafayette—A Anderson.
Liberty—O D Vosburgh.
Norwich—C W Dickinson.
Otto—W T Strickland.
Sergeant—W T Totten.
Smethport Boro—R H Rose
Wetmore—R M Campbell.

The following names were presented for the nomination as Representative:

H. F. Barbour, Smethport; C. H. Foster, Bradford; A. T. Barden, Eldred.

On motion, Convention adjourned until 7 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

Convention re-assembled at 7 p. m.

Balloting for Representative was first thing in order, resulting in the nomination of C. H. Foster on the third formal ballot.

The following gentlemen were placed in nomination for Associate Judges:

G. M. Smith, Smethport.
D. A. Hazlett, Smethport.
H. W. Barlingame, Hamlin Twp.
F. N. Burnham, Eldred Twp.
C. L. Allen, Otto Twp
A. Anderson, Lafayette Twp.

F. N. Burnham was nominated on first ballot, and G. M. Smith on second.

J. E. B. White and S. G. Curtis were named for Jury Commissioner, and White received the nomination on first ballot.

J. K. Hafley and L. Rogers were placed in nomination for State Senator, and upon ballot L. Rogers was declared the nominee, and upon motion permitted to select his own delegates.

Upon motion W. J. Colegrove was presented as a candidate for Congress, with the permission to select his own delegates.

The committee then reported the following resolutions:

The Republicans of McKean County in Convention assembled do hereby declare.

1st. That in this Centennial anniversary of our nations' birth we reiterate the great truths promulgated by our fathers, "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that for the attainment of these ends Governments have been instituted among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," and that until these truths are maintained in their fullest significance upon every inch of soil over which the stars and stripes float as the emblem of governmental authority, just so long will this country require a Republican party to control its destinies.

2d We believe that the injury being daily and hourly inflicted upon the people of this country by the use of a paper currency which represents less than 90 per cent of a dollar should be tolerated no longer than the actual necessities of the case require, and we deprecate in the strongest possible terms the efforts of the late confederate—Democratic House of Representatives at Washington to repeal that portion of the Resumption act which requires the Government to redeem its paper currency in coin after the 1st. of January, 1879.

3d. We favor a Civil Service Reform which will prevent the one-armed and one-legged defenders of the Government from being kicked out of office to make places for men who shouldered their muskets and drew their swords to strike down the grandest form of Government yet instituted by man.

4th. We insist that it is the duty of the Government to protect its citizens in every right guaranteed by the Constitution, and we therefore regard with the utmost satisfaction the recent order of the Secretary of War which looks to the protection of the voter in the late Rebel States in the discharge of his Constitutional rights.

5th. We declare that the Democratic party has acquiesced in the amendments to the Constitution and Reconstruction acts arising from the results of the war as a matter of necessity, and not because of any love for those amendments or the legislation following them, and it is our earnest and sincere belief that should that party again assume control of this Government it would undo the glorious work brought about by those measures, and for that reason it won'l be an unsafe depositary of this nations welfare.

6th. We call upon every voter who desires good Government in the place of anarchy, who believes in the maintenance of free institutions instead of the backward tendency to slavery and barbarism, who believes in fulfilling every obligation of the Government, as faithfully as he would fulfill his own, and finally who believes it to be safer to trust the reins of Government to the hands of an honest man and patriot rather than to the hands of a sympathizer with treason and a perjurer, to cast his ballot for Rutherford B. Hayes, of Ohio for President and Wm. A. Wheeler of New York for Vice President.

7th. That the candidates nominated by this Convention deserve and we trust will receive the enthusiastic support of the citizens of McKean.

On motion it was requested that the proceedings be published in the McKean County MINER and Bradford NEW ERA.

Convention adjourned SINE DIE.

—The Elk county Democrats have made the following nominations: For Congress, L. A. Mackey; Senator, John C. Hall; Assembly, Dr. C. E. Earley; Associate Judges, G. E. Weis and Julius Jones; District Attorney, C. H. McCauley.

Catholic services were held in the Union church, of this place yesterday, (Sunday) morning. Rev. Father Patterson presiding.

The Sunday School picnic, last Friday would have proved a complete success had it not been for the rain which came about noon.

We are pleased to note that last Friday our Cornet Band led the procession to the Picnic grounds, and as they passed through town played some excellent pieces. The boys are very rapidly improving.

Frank N. Taylor, of Smethport, was in town yesterday. He is looking well and says he is trying to do the same. We have no reason to doubt his word.

Mr. Humphrey, our gentlemanly station agent has more time to himself of late, from the fact that he has an experienced assistant.

Hamlin, Pa. Sept. 4, 1876.

To the Editor of the Miner:

My attention has been called to an item in your issue of the 31st ult., in which your correspondent "Miner" gives an account of an accident to a man on the McKean & Buffalo R. R. I presume your correspondent was not present at the time the accident occurred, or he wouldn't have misrepresented it in such a manner. As an eye witness to the accident, I wish to correct a mistake in the above account. "Miner" insinuates that it was the man's own fault, and that he was trying to be too smart. Now Mr. Editor, the lever of the hand-car struck the man and knocked him off. Your correspondent thinks very little of a serious accident, and treats such in a laughable way. As to the "independent and parallel air line," and other high toned phrases in which "Miner" indulges in, I think he might have left them out, as, instead of giving the true account of the accident, they slander the injured man. Such expressions are always a sign of small brains, and should do more to injure the writer than any one else. I have heard it said that "Miner" is notorious for such-like correspondence, especially when they concern the working class, but I think your good sense should teach you not to allow such slanderous attacks on any person to appear in your paper. Hoping you will excuse me for the passing on your valuable space, I remain

Most respectfully,
A RAIL-ROADER.

TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC.

For many years we have made two medicines suited to the ailments of a vast class of sufferers. Thousands of cures have been made by them, and, in fact, the word failure could never be coupled with them. But within the last two years counterfeits of our medicines have sprung up, dangerous in their close imitation of our Trade Mark. To secure the people we have printed upon each genuine box of Holloway's Pills and Holloway's Ointment the fac-simile of the signature of our Agent, Mr. Jos. Haylock. We shall relentlessly pursue any one who imitates this with the utmost vigor of the Law. We most earnestly beg that the great mass of the American people will aid us in our efforts to protect their health, and help us in our task of bringing these most unprincipled men to the bar of justice. Uniformly refuse to purchase Medicines purporting to be ours unless Mr. Jos. Haylock's signature is attached to each Box of Pills or Pot of Ointment and the end will soon be reached.

The public's obedient servants,
HOLLOWAY & CO.

"I had never found Anything before that Helped me so Well."

Owing to its Healing, Nerve Restorative and Cleansing properties, all female complaints are at once benefited by the use of Dr. Fenner's Blood and Liver Remedy and Nerve Tonic, and cure inevitably follows in a reasonable time. It has special properties adapted to this class of diseases also, and its cleansing and regulating qualities, together with its building up or restorative action on the nerves adapt it especially to these cases. Here is a complaint very common to females, readily relieved:

Jamestown, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1871.

Dr. E. M. Fenner, Fredonia, N. Y.—Dear Sir—I was afflicted with Dyspepsia, Headaches, Sour stomach, Constipation, Pain in my Back and across me, and great soreness and weakness, which I had for many years, and for which I had doctored a great deal, but never got more than some temporary relief. I began taking your Blood and Liver Remedy and Nerve Tonic about one year ago. I had never found anything before that helped me so well. I continued to gain steadily till I thought myself wholly cured. About six months have now passed, and I have not had any return of the di ease.

MRS. ELECTA SWEET.

Hundreds of cases like the above might be cited.

This Remedy is a vegetable compound, so made up of the choicest plants carefully collected from every country and clime of the world, as to possess the rarest Alternative or Cleansing and purifying, together with Healing and Tonic or Nerve Strengthening and Restorative properties combined.

AN ORIENTAL TRAVELLER describes this busy scene, witnessed on Indian shores: "Our Steamer landed on a beach which was the port of Antioch, where the disciples were first called Christians. There was no at the water's edge, no people, no wharf. The passengers and the merchandize were put ashore in lighters, which ran up into the sand. A troop of camels, with their drivers, lay on the beach, ready to transport the goods into the interior. Among the articles landed were boxes marked J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U. S. A.," showing that they contained medicines and whence they came. These with other goods were hoisted on the backs of camels, for transportation to Antioch. Thus the skill of the West sends forth its remedies to heal the maladies of populations that inhabit these eastern shores, whence our spiritual manna came."—Windsor (Vt.) Chronicle.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, the Hon. H. W. WILLIAMS, President Judge and the Hons. W. S. BROWNELL and LOYAL WARD, Associate Judges of the courts of Over Terminer and General Jail Delivery Quarter Sessions of the Peace, Orphans Court and Court of Common Pleas for the County of M'Kean have issued their precept, bearing date Friday June 23, A D 1876, and to me directed for holding a Court of Over Terminer and General Jail Delivery, Quarter Sessions of the Peace, Orphans Court, and Court of Common Pleas, in the Borough of Smethport, on Monday the 25th day of Sept. 1876, and to continue one week.

Notice is therefore hereby given to the Coroners, Justices of the Peace and Constables within the county that they be then and there in their proper persons at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, with their rolls, records, inquisitions, examinations, and other remembrances, to do those things which their offices appertain to be done. And those who are bound by their recognizances to prosecute the prisoners that are or shall be in the jail of said county of M'Kean, are to be then and there to prosecute against them as will be just.

Dated at Smethport, Sept. 2, 1876, and the 100th year of the Independence of the United States of America.

MANHOOD: HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to marriage, etc.; also Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

Price in a sealed envelope, only six cents. The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, post paid, on receipt of six cents or two post stamps. Address the Publishers.

A Narrow Escape.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal gives the following account of the accident to Lu-Lu at Hengler's circus, Dublin: Lu-Lu was hoisted up and went through a series of feats on the trapeze that were equally characterized by grace and daring. Then came the great feature of the evening. Lu-Lu and her manager, M. Cuzan, took their place upon the improvised platform, from which it was rather pompously announced she was to leap to a trapeze fifty feet above her. The audience were requested to concentrate their attention upon her, as her movements were almost too rapid for the eye to follow. Lu-Lu stepped upon the top of the spring that was visible on a level with the floor of the platform. There was a dead silence among the audience, there was a slight click, as of some machinery, and Lu-Lu stepped quickly from the spring on to the platform. The audience applauded, and the manager explained that the mishap was due to some easily remedied defect in the machinery, and that Lu-Lu would perform her almost equally celebrated feat of tumbling three commersaults in the air, which she accordingly did. Again she stepped on to the spring—nervously this time, and with a very noticeable hesitance. For a moment she stood half bent, with her hands down, and a nervous tremor passed through her limbs and body. Again the signal was given, and this time with terrible shock. Lu-Lu was shot up through the air like a rocket. But the direction, though not the force of the spring, was defective. Instead of rising, as she should have done, in a slanting direction, toward the bar which she was to catch, and the ropes that hung above and below it to prevent the possibility of failure and accident, she was shot up in a sheer perpendicular line so to open a mile. A fearful sight it was. She seemed for one moment as she reached the highest point to be poised in midair fifty feet above ground, quite clear of the ropes and the trapeze. She grasped wildly at space, and then, with all her limbs rigidly extended, fell with fearful rapidity. Half her body struck the netting, which was not sufficiently extended to effectually save her, but which broke her fall. She was jerked out by the rebound, the back of her head struck the cushioned edge of the orchestral compartment, and she rolled beneath the platform. The audience poured like a torrent over the barriers amidst shouts and screams and expressions of compassion and consternation; and it was with the utmost difficulty that a semblance of order was restored, and the injured girl conveyed to the dressing room behind. A physician was at once procured, and soon the reassuring rumor, afterward officially confirmed, leaked out that the injuries were not dangerous.

Starving to Death.

An officer in New York gives the following incidents of the terrible sufferings there of the poor. He says: I called upon a poor woman in Thirty-sixth street, a widow with three little children and a daughter aged nineteen. The woman was not a stolid creature without sensibility, and capable only of physical suffering. She was scrupulously neat in her person and surroundings, her face was intelligent and refined, and her grammar faultless. Before her husband's death they were in comfortable circumstances. Now, all they have had for weeks has been what she and her daughter could earn at making calico shirts at fifty cents a dozen! By beginning very early in the morning, and working steadily until near midnight through these terrible days in July, they have been able to finish a dozen shirts. Of the fifty cents thus earned, thirty cents were pledged for rent, leaving twenty cents a day to feed five persons! She told me that she and her children often suffered from hunger, not having the means to buy a loaf of bread, and being too proud to beg. No wonder that persons in such straits purchase the cheapest food that will stay the gnawing of hunger, without reference to its fitness for a human stomach; and when disease and death follow they are ascribed in the health reports to any other than the real cause, starvation. Who shall tell how often the diseases reported as fevers, marasmus, cholera infantum, sunstroke, are branches of a single tree whose trunk is famine?

Many heartrending cases have been brought to my notice by the Rev. Mr. McCaffrey, rector of the Episcopal Church of our Savior, who is laboring among the poor. At his request I visited a family in East Thirty-fifth street. The husband, a laboring man, had long been out of work everything which a pawnbroker would take was gone, the children were almost naked, and the room presented the appearance of extreme wretchedness. The floor was covered with an old rag carpet, which was fairly slippery with accumulated grease and filth and emitted a sickening odor. I begged them to throw this carpet away, but the woman lifted it up and showed me that the floor was full of rat holes through which the children might break their legs, and that the carpet was necessary to cover up these holes, and to keep the children from wounding their feet with splinters and the projecting heads of nails.

Side Aisle Trade.

A good illustration of the manner in which many Americans recognize while pretending to ignore social conditions in religious matters, is afforded by the story of a church sexton. At a brilliant church wedding one of the ushers showed some very worthy but socially obscure people into good seats in the middle aisle. As soon as he discovered it the pompous sexton hastened to the usher and exclaimed: "Did you give the ——s that seat?" "Yes." "What on earth did you do that for? Did you not know that they were only side aisle folk?"

On the Broad Ocean.

We have a theory, says the Cape Ann Advertiser, that another story besides the Centennial is attempting to make the passage across the Atlantic, and that thus accounts for the conflicting reports concerning Captain Johnson, in the Centennial. The craft is of the same general description as the Centennial, and is called the Brittle, and was spoken in latitude forty deg. forty-five min., longitude sixty-seven deg. ten min., partially disabled. In support of this theory is the statement of the master of the schooner Newport, at Windsor, N. S., from New York, whose vessel was boarded by the master of the Brittle in latitude forty-one deg. thirty min., longitude sixty seven deg. thirteen min. The captain of the Newport reports that at eleven o'clock in the morning he sighted a "small boat, under sail, about sixteen feet keel and sloop rigged. At first sight two persons were apparent, but on nearer approach one disappeared. The little vessel was completely decked, having but a small hatchway amidships. The individual in command of the boat made a signal indicating that he wished to board us. I had my vessel laid to. He came on board, made fast his line, and walked rapidly aft to the quarter deck. He shook hands with me and asked the course to England. I told him he would never reach England in his cockle shell. He laughed and said: 'Oh, yes, he would.' I took him to the cabin to show him the chart; but he was so nervous and excited that he appeared not to understand anything I told him. His general movements and looks were of the most suspicious character. I asked him what he was doing so far from land in so small a boat. He said that he was eight days out from New York, had run away, and was bound for England. He stayed on board about ten minutes, and, having shaken hands, left precipitately, and washed to be reported. He gave his name as Charles Matthewson. The boat was clinker built. My impression at the time was that the second person was a lady, and the adventure an elopement. If they persevere in steering for the British islands they will too probably spend the remainder of their honeymoon deep down under the waters of the Atlantic."

A Woman's Affliction.

One evening, shortly after retiring for the night, the matron of the Home, at Scranton, Pa., went down to the front door and found a little girl stranger calling loudly for help, snugly wrapped and laid upon a bundle that proved to be clothing for the little one. A note was also found, written in a lady's hand, plain and neat. The little one is a nice, healthy looking girl, apparently about eight weeks old. The letter read as follows: "I am a poor woman; have been married two years; my husband left me three months ago in search of work. I have not seen or heard of him in that time. He left me a little money, but it's all gone. I tried to get work, but could not on account of my child; if I keep her we must both starve; I know of no other to see her provided for than the way I have decided on. I can probably get my own living, and if possible, will send you money to pay her keeping, perhaps not enough, but all I can get will be sent to you for her. If my husband comes back I will come and get my child; until then I must let strangers care for her. It breaks my heart to let her go, but I can do no better; I have spent my last penny for things for her; my last two cents got her a half pint of milk this morning, and I have not tasted food to-day, nor do I know where I am going to stay to-night. You may think I am an unnatural mother, but put yourself in my place and then you will see differently. My child's name is Nellie May, and I entreat you to love and be kind to my dear innocent babe, as you hope for mercy hereafter yourself."

All Have their Troubles.

If, as is no doubt the case, those living along side of railroads have their complaints of all treatment to make, so the railroad company itself also has its source of trouble. For instance: I knew a case on a Western road, says a correspondent, where a man brought suit against the company for killing an imported thoroughbred jack, valued at something like $300. At the trial it was proven the man paid but $10 for the animal, and just before train time coaxed him upon the track to eat his fodder. The poor brute actually hadn't vitality enough to step off the rail after he got there, and the railroad company would have been mulcted in heavy damages had not their attorney been able to prove the facts in the case. Along many lines of Western roads it is common to dispose of useless cattle and horses in the same way, and some farsheaded farmers, relying on the sympathies of a just jury, bestow dead sheep and hogs on the track at night and then sue for double the live value of the creatures slaughtered, and they usually recover. It was only a short time ago that the New York papers reported the case of a young lady who brought suit against a Long Island railroad for severe injuries received by an accident, backed up by the strongest medical testimony. Happily the company was able to prove an alibi for her, showing she was not within six miles of the smash-up at the time it occurred, and, for a wonder, she lost her case.

BITTEN BY RATS.—While a dyer's wife in Leith, Scotland, recently was dressing her children, bedroom where three of her children, aged fourteen, nine and four, were sleeping, she was horrified to find their faces covered with blood, and the bedclothes covered with blood, and the bedclothes spattered. The children had been attacked during the night by a rat, which they vainly endeavored to catch on the previous evening. It had bitten the cheeks of the two little boys, and more severely the head of a girl, who lost a large quantity of blood.

"Wild Bill."

Everybody in this country has heard of "Wild Bill," a noted scout, buffalo hunter and plainsman, and who, on account of his reckless bravery, was made marshal at different times of several frontier towns when it was necessary, because of the lawlessness that prevailed in their early settlement, to have peace officers who would kill in order to uphold their authority. During "Wild Bill's" administration as marshal of Abilene and Wichita he is said to have shot to death many a man who resisted him, and in this peculiar way kept comparative peace. Either in Abilene or Wichita, which, is not known at present to this chronicler, Bill once killed a man named Sutherland. That was several years ago, but the avenger of Sutherland's death kept the trail like a sleuth hound.

"Wild Bill," whose real name was Will Hickok, was a tall, handsome fellow, about forty years of age, as straight as an Indian, and, like most of his class, wore his hair, which was as black as a crow, falling over his shoulders. Having gotten into trouble with the Texas herders who made Wichita their headquarters, things got too warm for William, and he retired from the frontier. After remaining some months at Kansas City he went East and got into the dramatic business under Ned Buntline, who at that time was making something of a sensation by introducing into blood and thunder plays the characters represented by "Buffalo Bill" (William Cody, of Nebraska), "Texas Jack" (John Omohundro) and "Wild Bill," the subject of this article. Moreover, he had these parties employed to play their own parts, and the venture was a grand success.

Buffalo Bill and Texas Jack both got rich and married leading actresses, and Wild Bill married Mrs. Lake, of circus fame, the widow of Lake, the showman, who was killed at Granby, Mo., about four years ago. Not long since "Wild Bill" came from California with his wife and took her to Cincinnati, where he left her with friends and relatives, and he went back to do some scouting duty with General Crook's command, when he first started into the Indian country.

By some means Bill drifted into the Black Hills, and was shot in the back of the head and killed in Deadwood City by a man named Sutherland, a brother of the man of that name whom "Wild Bill" had killed at Abilene or Wichita. Our informant says that Bill has many friends in the West, especially at Cheyenne and in the Black Hills, who say that Sutherland will never live to get out of that country.

A Buffalo Hunt.

A Buffalo "pot hunt," such as used to take place annually between the Missouri and Saskatchewan rivers, is described by H. M. Robinson in Appletons' Journal. The party, numbering hundreds, started out about the first of September, and remained on the plains until the end of October. The rendezvous was in the northeast corner of Dakota, and men, women, and children were included in the company. Carts, drawn by ponies and oxen, conveyed the baggage; and the camp was enlivened by gambling, horseriding, dancing, and occasionally by fighting. Officers were elected for the hunt, rules for sons were adopted and then guides conducted the caravan to a place near which buffalo herds had been recently seen. The encounter with the beasts is thus described: The chief gives the signal, and a thousand reckless riders dash forward in a wild run. Into the herd they penetrate; along its sides they stretch, the trained horses regulating their pace to that of the moving mass beside them; the guns flash, shots and yells resound; the dust rises in thick clouds over the struggling band; and the chase sweeps rapidly over the plain, leaving its trace behind in the multitude of animals lying dead upon the ground, or feebly struggling in their death throes. The hunter pauses not a moment, but loads and fires with the utmost rapidity, pouring in his bullets at the closest range, often almost touching the animal he aims at.

After a Marriage on a Deathbed.

In 1870 Mrs. O'Brien, a widow with three daughters, married Jim Farrell, who had been a barkeeper for her husband. In April, 1873, she obtained a decree of divorce on the ground of cruelty on Farrell's part, brought about by strong drink. In 1875 she began to suffer from paralysis and apoplexy, which produced her death on the thirtieth of April, 1876. Just previous to her death, on the third of April, Farrell appeared at her bedside with Justice Fennis and a grave digger from the Masonic cemetery, and the twain were remarried. Immediately after the ceremony Farrell produced a will, and it was signed by his wife, making him sole legatee of her property, which amounted to $30,000, and leaving her children utterly destitute. The will has been set aside.

The Indian Question.

A frontiersman suggests the following benevolent plan for clearing out the "Injuns." He says: "If I was the gov'rnment I'd buy lots o' barrels of whisky and lots o' big knives, and I'd put 'em somewhar in the West, and invite every redskin in the hull land to what they call a conference. After they'd got thar, I'd knock in the head o' the barrels and scatter the knives all round loose, so they'd be handy. Then I'd go away and leave the Injuns to themselves. Of course, they'd take the whisky and the knives, and before sundown they wouldn't be more than one redskin left, and then I'd go and knock him in the head myself, afore he could do any his brains out, afore he could do any more damage. That, sir, 's the only real way to settle the Injun question. I've been among 'em, an' I know. Plenty of whisky an' long knives 'll fix 'em out, an' nothing else will."

"Epitaph on a bore—"He was not for a time, but for all day."

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

What is Doing in the Old World and the New.

Gen. Terry had effected a junction with Crook and the two commands continued to follow the Indian trail which Crook had struck. Sitting Bull sent word to the agency that he was willing and anxious to come in and make peace if assured of protection by the great father. He asserts that this war has been forced upon him by the whites . . . . A daring attempt to rob a pay car on the Kansas City and St. Joseph road was made in Kansas. A large body of men stopped a train at night, supposing it to be a freight, but, on discovering it to be a passenger train, permitted it to proceed. . . . Nominations to Congress: Kansas, third district, Thos. Ryan, Rep.; Missouri, sixth, H. F. Havens, Rep. . . . . The 2.26 race at Utica, N. Y., was won by Great Eastern, over seven competitors, in 2.23¼, 2.21¼, 2.22. Harris took first money in the 2.20 contest, trotting in 2.22½, 2.21½, 2.23. . . The king of Dahomey has three French prisoners and threatens to execute them if the British bombard his towns.

Hon. Michael C. Kerr, Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, died at Rockbridge Alum Springs, Va. Mr. Kerr was born near Titusville, Pa., March 15, 1827. In 1852 he settled in New Albany, Indiana, in the practice of law. In 1854 he was elected city attorney, and in 1860 to the State legislature, six years later he was elected reporter to the supreme court of Indiana, and published five volumes of reports. In 1864 he was elected a representative to the Thirty-ninth Congress, and served on the committees on private land claims and accounts. He was re-elected to the Fortieth, Forty-first and Forty-second Congress. In 1872 he was the Democratic candidate for Congressman at large in Indiana, and was defeated by Hon. Godlove S. Orth by a majority of 162. He was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress and was chosen Speaker by the Democratic majority—the vote being, Kerr, 170; Blaine, 103. He was in ill health at the time, and has been gradually failing until his death as announced.

Henry Hughes and wife, of Melbourne, Canada, were killed by a locomotive while crossing a track in a wagon. . . . Thomas Darragh, Robert Cranston, Richard Harrington, Martin Hogan, James Wilson and Thomas Hassett, the six Fenian prisoners who made their escape from British penal servitude under thrilling circumstances, arrived safely in New York in the whaler Catalpa, in which they made the voyage from Australia. . . Hon. Josiah Quincy, of Boston, has failed. Liabilities, $30,000; assets, $200,000 . . . . . Reports have been received from Abyssinia that Walda Mikael, the insurgent chief, has defeated the Abyssinians at Zahrona, and 1,800 women and children have been massacred. . . . . A ten-mile swimming match on the Mississippi between Frank Prince, of St. Louis, and Tom Sacliffe, of England, resulted in a victory for Prince by two minutes. The time of the race was one hour and forty-one minutes While five young men were rowing in New York harbor, their boat was struck by a passing steamer and sunk. Two of the occupants were drowned and a third was seriously injured by being hit by the wheel of the boat. . . Sam Camden outraged a little white girl in Huntington, W. Va., and was hanged by an enraged crowd.

All but twenty-seven of the Ute Indians, who were to assist in fighting the Sioux, deserted from the army, carrying off their arms and ammunition Nominations to Congress: Pennsylvania, Jamata district, Jeremiah Lyons, Rep., Pennsylvania, Sunbury district, W. L. Dewart, Dem., Pennsylvania, thirteenth, J. L. Nutting, Rep., Ohio, second, Stanley Matthews, Rep. . . . Twenty-eight business houses were destroyed in Emmaville, Ontario, by fire. Fourteen families were rendered homeless. . . . . Owing to the expense of subsistence. . . . . Owing to the expense of subduing internal insurrections, the emperor of Morocco has announced his inability to pay Turkey the annual subsidy. . . Ex-County Treasurer Courtright, of Luzerne county, Pa., who was convicted a short time since of embezzlement, has refunded to the State the sum of $10,868. . . . Henry Smith and Squire Hammond, two wild young men, murdered Robert Martin, in Overton, Ky., and after their incarceration in jail they were taken therefrom by an armed mob and hanged to a tree The three-quarter-mile dash at the Saratoga extra meeting was won by Freebooter in 1.17. The mile and a half race was won by Burgoo, over six competitors, in 2.39. Nieco won the mile and an eighth race in 1.54½. The three-quarters of a mile dash for two-years-old resulted in a victory for Princess of Thule in 2.19.

Sitting Bull has made efforts to induce the Canadian Blackfeet Indians to join him; but they decline. . . . A serious strike occurred among the laborers on the rice plantations along the Combahee river, S. C. Many men wished to work but were intimidated by those who wanted an advance of wages. As the crops had to be harvested in a few days or be lost, Gov. Chamberlain ordered the sheriff to summon a posse and afford protection. . . . . A prisoner named Osborn fatally wounded Sheriff Henderson in the jail at Robinson, Kan., for which he was taken out by a masked mob and hanged. . . . During a quarrel between Frank Watson and George Carpenter in Broome, Schoharie county, N. Y., Watson broke a rake handle over Carpenter's head, whereupon the latter seized one of the pieces and plunged the jagged end into Watson's bowels, causing death . . Knights of Pythias made an imposing parade in Philadelphia. Ten thousand were in line, comprising lodges from all parts of the country.

The New York Republican State convention nominated Edwin D. Morgan for governor, Sherman S. Rogers for lieutenant-governor, George F. Danforth for associate judge of the court of appeals, Daniel G. Spencer for canal commissioner, and Charles W. Trowbridge for State prison inspector. The resolutions adopted by the convention reaffirm the platform adopted by the National Republican convention, and heartily approve the principles set forth in the letters of acceptance of R. B. Hayes and Wm. A. Wheeler; in favor of a reformed public service; insists that the equal rights and lives of all citizens must and shall be protected, and that the government must be restored from the consequences of the war by those who saved it, and not by those who attempted to destroy it. On the financial question it says: Whereas the date of the payment of our obligations bearing no interest after maturity is of the very essence of its full and entire validity, and the postponement of its payment repudiation to the extent of the usual interest from the date of promised payment, we therefore denounce the repeal of the date of specie resumption by the Democratic House of Representatives, without making the dishonored notes bear the current government rate of interest, as an act of repudiation and disloyalty, and an open violation of the section of the fourteenth amendment to the United States Constitution, which provides that the validity of the public debt authorized by laws shall not be questioned. The alacrity and great unanimity of the Southern Democrats in the House of Representatives to repeal the date of payment of the United States notes, without consideration in the form of interest, and in violation of the plighted faith of the government, shows that they are not safe custodians of the national faith, and that fidelity to public honor requires that the national administration shall not be subject to their control, dictation or management. It arraigns the Democratic party for its faults, and concludes as follows: The Republicans of New York tender to the President of the United States, upon the approaching completion of his official term, the assurance of their profound respect and gratitude for those illustrious public and patriotic services which will secure his name an imperishable place in history.

A flood in Mississippi caused a weak railway bridge near Tugaloo to give way while a train was crossing, resulting in the wrecking of several cars, by which two passengers were killed and sixteen wounded. . . . . A plague of caterpillars has appeared in Alabama. . . . . Congressional nominations: Illinois, eighth district, Geo. W. Parker, Ind.; West Virginia, first, Benj. Wilson, Dem.; Alabama, eighth, W. W. Garth, Dem.; Kentucky, J. C. S. Blackburn, Dem. . . . . At the Centennial regatta Courtney and Robinson of the Union Springs (N. A Banker's Shrewdness.

A Parisian banker has the misfortune to possess a wife who is addicted to gambling. Year after year she goes to Monaco, and loses large sums on the green cloth. Her husband has been at his wits' end to stop the evil without resorting to harsh measures. At last a happy thought struck him. Calling to him a confidential clerk named Armand, who was unknown to his wife, he gave him instructions to follow the lady and to attend daily at the gaming table. Armand was told to watch carefully the way she staked her money, and always to place a similar amount on the opposite color. By this means the banker hoped that he would be able to "hedge" the sums staked by his wife, and that the only losses he could possibly experience would be the general expenses incurred by his clerk.

A short time elapsed, and the husband received among his correspondence one morning two letters from Monaco—one from his wife, the other from M. Armand. Opening the first he found but two lines, but those were to the point. The lady had experienced the loss of 60,000 francs, and wrote for more money. Turning to the next letter, with some feeling of self-satisfaction at his own shrewdness, he read as follows: "Kind friend and patron: I have implicitly followed your instructions, but I have never worked so hard in my life. Madam arrived at the Casino at midday and never leaves the table until midnight. Twelve hours without eating or drinking is no joke. However, I have nothing to complain of. I have won 60,000 francs, and, as I am not ambitious, I am content to stop there. I start at once for Montguyon, a charming little town where I was born, and where my cousin awaits me, to whom I am about to be married. Knowing the interest you take in my welfare, I shall be indeed proud if you will be present at our wedding. Of the 20,000 francs which you intrusted me with, there remains 11,341 fr. 20c., which I remit to you in a bank check. The balance has been expended in my hotel bill and other incidental items. Yours, etc., Armand."

Neuralgia.

Neuralgia in the faces and heads of women is largely on the increase as compared with the number of instances of the disease among men, and this is believed to be due to the inferior protection afforded by the mode in which women now cover their heads. It is not only one of the most common of feminine maladies, but one of the most painful and difficult of treatment. It is also a cause of much mental depression, and is regarded by physicians as leading more often to habits of intemperance among women than any other disease.

Pimples on the face, rough skin, chapped hands, saltrheum and all cutaneous affections cured, the skin made soft and smooth, by the use of JUNIPER TAR SOAP. That made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, is the only kind that can be relied on, as there are many imitations, made from common tar, which are worthless.

In ten years the screw has entirely replaced the paddle in transatlantic navigation, the weight of marine engines has diminished one-half, the steam pressure has quadrupled, and the consumption of coal has decreased two-thirds.

A Case of Thirty Years' Standing.

EAST AURORA, N. Y., May 22, 1872.

HOSANNA, Seth W. Fowle & Sons:

Gentlemen—I was troubled with dyspepsia for thirty years, and I tried several medicines advertised for the cure of this distressing complaint without deriving any benefit from them. About a year ago I commenced taking the Peruvian Syrup, and after using altogether twelve bottles I find myself entirely cured. I consider my case one of the worst I ever heard of, and I take great pleasure in recommending the Peruvian Syrup to all dyspeptics, believing that it will be sure to cure them.

Yours respectfully, J. T. BOWEN.

Sold by all druggists.

See advertisement of James' Balsam.

The most astonishing cure of chronic diarrhœa we ever heard of is that of Wm. Harris, Clark, Frankfort Mills, Waldo Co., Maine. The facts are attested by Ezra Treat, Upon Treat and M. A. Merrill, either of whom might be address ed for particulars. Mr. Clark was cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

Hon. Joseph Farewell, mayor of Rockland, Me., Isaac M. Bates, Esq., Bangor, and Messrs. Pope Bros., Mariners, Me., former merchants, fully indorse the Sheridan Cemetery Condition Powders, and have given the proprietors liberty to use their names in recommending them.

MUM: A word in your ear. The next time it's you that you can't get out, buy a box of GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP. That admirable purifier will remove every one of those pimples which detract so much from your beauty. There is youth in every bottle of Hall's Hair Dye.
